BUTTERS

Vegetal butters are used in cosmetics for skin and hair care.

They are fatty substances extracted from plants and they can be used alone or combined with other ingredients to make products suitable for body and hair care.

They have emollient, moisturizing, soothing and protective virtues.

Each variety of butter contains specific properties:

ESSENTIAL OILS

Essential Oils are valuable mixtures of liquid and volatile aromatic substances, mainly extracted by steam distillation from plant material from various types of aromatic plants; they can also be obtained by cold pressure, as in the case of oils derived from citrus peel, or by solvent extraction. They are used in cosmetics formulations, aromatherapy, massage oils and medicinal agents. Plant-based essential oils are widely used in perfumery, food and flavor components, preservatives, and medicinal treatments such as aromatherapy, topical pain relief, arthritis, and acne.

WAXES

Waxes are added to cosmetic formulations to create unguents, cold creams, makeup, serums, oil gels, solid perfumes, and more. They are used to solidify, thicken, create, and stabilize emulsions and protect the skin from dehydration due to their filming power.
